

To the captain of the trading ship Riffraff.
From Rowlund Bladesmith,
The Sea Serpent's Demise (Inn),
Yabseloc Harbour.

I have discovered that your good ship has been chartered by some colleagues of mine to trace and receive some property which was stolen from me. This message has been delivered to the four towns which I believe my colleagues are likely to visit, so I hope that it finds you all well and I do hope that the voyage has been safe and successful thus far.

Once my property has been recovered, would you all please meet me at 'The Sea Serpent's Demis' in Yabseloc where I am staying. I'll can add 50 GP to what ever may colleagues are paying when I see you.

Please let them know that I am recovering well from my injuries and that I'm eager to see them as well as to recover my property which I hope they will have with them.

Yours in eager anticipation,
Rowlund Bladesmith.
